

5 Simple First Date Techniques to Land a Second Date ... (and More!)

Ever had that joyful feeling after a fun first date that things went so well that a second date was guaranteed, but then...

... he never asked you out again?

So, what happened?

You thought he had fun too and that you both were really into each other.

Here's the short and sweet:

Sure, he had fun, but he didn't feel a connection.

Maybe it wasn't all your fault because he could have made a better effort to find an emotional bond, but he didn't.

Sometimes people connect or they don't, no matter what happens.

But why leave it to pure chance?

When it comes to feelings there is always something you can do to improve the odds in your favor.

In this guide, we will look at five ways you can proactively improve the chances of landing a second date by applying some simple in-date techniques.

Of course, if you'd like to learn one of the most effective ways to take advantage of one of our primal needs to place you at the center of our universe, become an irresistible goddess to us on an emotional level, then click here to learn how to trigger our desire to act like heroes. (Yes, it sounds shallow and ridiculous, but it's absolutely real and powerful).

Let's take a look and then afterwards email me at orlando@infidelityfirstaidkit.com to tell me what you think.

1. Drop Hints to the Kinds of Things that Will Make You Happy

Sure, you can straight up ask him to take you two specific places or events, however, that defeats the purpose of making yourself the prize to be won.

I want him to work to earn your affection and respect; therefore, I recommend the indirect route here.

During the date, while things are going well, you're having fun and laughing with him you can hint to the places you want to go.

Try these two methods to see which works best:

1. Ask him to list some of his favorite places to go. Then the places that sound fun to you simply make a comment to him like, "Wow! That sounds really fun. I'd love to go there sometime. Maybe you could take me."

Then smile at him.

Or...

2. Mention some places or events that you have heard are fun and ask him which sound like the most fun to him.

Then after he chooses a place, make a simple comment like, “It does sound fun, right? I definitely want to give it a shot. Maybe you could take me sometime.”

The key is that you are eliminating his biggest fear.

The fear of rejection.

You are telling him that not only do you enjoy spending time with him but that also deliver the best information to him on a silver platter- the exact place that you want to go and the promise of a guaranteed date with you again.

There's no better news than that for us guys.

2. Avoid Disputes and Debates *Instead Find Out What He's Most Proud Of

While, yes, most of us guys are very competitive and we enjoy a thought-provoking, interesting debate over politics, current news, sports or philosophy, I would not recommend doing this during the first or any of the first few dates with a man.

Unless, of course, you want to risk getting stuck in the “Friend Zone”.

Leave debates for conversations with friends.

During your dates with a guy that you're attracted to, find ways to connect with him.

Search for the qualities, accomplishments, experiences or characteristics that he is most proud of about himself.

This is Basic Conversation Rapport Building 101.

Get him to discuss many of these and ask a few follow up questions on whatever he decides to bring up.

Then commend him on what you feel he enjoys talking about most.

Yes, that may mean that he dumps a bunch of information you were not interested in hearing, but it accomplishes two things.

1. He will enjoy how you make him feel about himself and about being around you.
2. You will appear compassionate and caring about learning who he is and what he likes, which will in turn separates you from the crowd of women who ask to receive things but do not give.

This certainly puts you in a strong position of evolving in the prize-to-be-won.

Us men prefer to spend time with women who treat us with respect and who look to have fun and get along with us.

We want the easygoing-princess not the drama queen.

Hopefully. He reciprocates the treatment and makes an effort to learn more about you.

If not, then you can turn down his invitation for a second date anyway, right?

3. Flirt, Make Him Feel Handsome and Appreciated

We like playful, teasing and fun women.

If we like you, then we want to shower you with compliments and, likewise, we want the same treatment.

Flirting is a much more fun and creative way to tell us that you like us and enjoy spending time with us.

Mix in some compliments about how attractive you think we are and this eliminates our fear of rejection.

I would say effective flirting is the best way to get a second or subsequent dates.

4. Create Inside Jokes, Stories and Nicknames/Pet Names

One of the best ways I have connected with women is when we create inside jokes or stories that only her and I can share.

These inside jokes and stories can come to life even just from our first few interactions and conversations even before the first date or between dates.

And one of the many keys for emotional connection is to develop something special that only you two can share.

This naturally is bringing you both together while separating you from the crowd of other women- and him from the other crowd of men.

It can be the simplest of jokes or stories.

5. Let Him Perform His Roles as a Protector, Provider, Hero

Yes, this is a recurring theme that you will see in many of my posts and PDF documents.

The need to feel like a protector, provider and hero/rescuer are deep emotional needs that we need met to create an unbreakable bond between us and our women.

For the purposes of the first date, or any of the first few dates, this simply means that he wants to act like a gentleman.

But let me be clear, I am referring to quality, relationship-minded, compassionate men, not players or non-committal guys.

Here are some of examples below of what he may do to act like a gentleman to feel like he is acting as a good provider, protector or hero/rescuer to you.

They're all simple and nothing new out-of-the-ordinary, but I simply would like to spotlight them and bring them back to your attention.

- Offers you his jacket to keep you warm.
- Opens the car door or front door to a restaurant.
- Brings you a gift regarding something you discussed in a text conversation before the date.
- Brings you flowers with your favorite color.
- Suggests you wait while he gets the car so that you do not have to walk a long distance.
- Rubs your cold hands to warm them up.
- Offers to get you more soda at the refreshment stand during the middle of the movie.
- Holds an umbrella over you so that you don't get wet.
- Carries all the groceries so that you don't have to carry any.
- Offers to take out your trash at your place.

- Offers to run to get you water while you wait under the shade at a park, zoo or theme park.
- Helps you wash the dishes or clean the kitchen after making dinner together.
- Orders your favorite drink before you ask the bartender for it (he remembered what you previously told him).

They may seem “old school” to you, but they allow him to fulfill his need to feel like a protector or provider during the first few dates.

Show appreciation of his intention to treat you like a lady and you will be on your way to a second date pretty quickly.

Click here for a deeper look at how triggering our hero instinct makes you irresistible to us and places you at the center of our universe.

Summary of 5 Simple Secrets to Land a Second Date ... (and More!)

Contrary to what many women believe, men are moved more by feelings and emotions, not just looks and outward appearance.

The secrets that I reveal here in this guide help you create that connection on purpose without relying on luck or for things “just to happen and fall into place” by themselves.

In fact, most of my content in my posts, emails and PDFs and the video series that I will start creating, focus on the strategy of influencing him emotionally.

The bottom line is that we fall in love with women who understand our emotional needs and allow us to be the most natural, best versions of ourselves around you.

This means that you accept us for who we are and do not try to change us.

Of course, I am only referring to mature, independent, relationship-minded men, not boys that still need a girlfriend-mom to take care of them and stroke their ego to boost their confidence.

Get Your [Bonus Gift] 7 Fun, Flirty First Date Games (or Interactions) to Build Emotional Attraction and ... to Get a Second Date

Thank you for reading all the way through this relationship guide and now I would like to offer you another bonus gift for investing your time with me and in your quest to seek true, ever-lasting love.

Now that you have learned some in-date techniques about how to connect with him why not equip yourself with some additional advanced techniques to naturally bond with him in a fun and interactive way?

I have applied these techniques on my dates with women and it turns them into emotional putty every time.

They're so simple, super cute and simultaneously seamlessly help you learn more about each other.

They will absolutely work to grab your man's attention, release all first-date jitters and already get him planning out your next date together.

Click here to download 7 Fun, Flirty First Date Games that Build Emotional Attraction (Naturally and Effortlessly) with a Man